Hobbies

DIY wonders, old worlds, new places

I am a software developer with seven years of experience specializing in complex web development, with expertise spanning frontend and "soft" backend technologies.

Over the course of my career, I have had the opportunity to work on a variety of projects, including a holiday rental service, an informational platform, and a SaaS platform. These experiences allowed me to apply my skills across diverse and challenging domains. My responsibilities have included developing user interfaces, managing client-server communication, testing, and occasionally leading projects. My experience in market research enhanced my ability to work with business clients and translate their needs into functional requirements.

I am seeking job opportunities that will allow me to maximize my potential and further develop my skills and knowledge.
